Early Middle College program will fit right in with the changing times.

“I think this is a good idea,” high school Principal Jeff Melvin said. He cautioned, however, that parents will have to help their teens stay on track when taking both high school and college courses.

“The college doesn’t want ‘helicopter parents’ hovering over them, but don’t always tell their parents when you’re dealing with them and the school every-15- and 16-year-olds, they thing,” Melvin said.
